

Dear FCC,

I am chagrined to hear that the NAB is attempting to stifle delivery of local content over XM satellite radio.

I live in the Rocky Mountains, and terrestrial AM/FM broadcasts are of limited use due to the terrain.

Additionally, The ability to receive weather and traffic alerts when driving would be a very useful and welcome service in those areas outside of cities. I travel throughout Wyoming and parts of Colorado where AM/FM radio is largely non-existent.

I strongly encourage you to allow and support the development and delivery of local and regional content via satellite radio.

Regards,

John L. Wray
